Pest Solutions

Spiders

There is no treatment for spiders that will last long periods of time or be 100% effective. Spiders are predators of other insects and to some degree the amount of insects you have outside on shrubs and plants will determine their presence. Many insects are also attracted to outside lighting, so the amount of lighting also plays a part. Other factors include temperature, rainfall and wind.

The good news is periodic treatments to the outside can be performed safely and inexpensively and work fairly well at preventing spiders before they have a chance to get inside.

Service schedules can vary from twice a year, quarterly or monthly, depending on your environment and location.
